Report: User Project - Downtown Pedestrian Improvement Project

Every year our customers come out with amazing products using Bentley software. And every year we encourage them to submit their projects to the Year in Infrastructure Awards! This program is a great opportunity for Bentley software users to get recognition for their hard work and their ground breaking projects.

This year, John Cruikshank of JMC2 Civil Engineering, submitted his project, the Downtown Pedestrian Improvement Project, for the YII Awards. Though not selected as a finalist, we wanted to highlight his project here.

This project took place in the city of Torrance and was to develop and improvement pedestrian walkways downtown. Though the main piece of the project was to create ADA compliant walkways, the city took the opportunity to improve on the area for all pedestrians. This included uniform, spacious, and ADA-compliant sidewalks, new decorative LED street lights, improved landscaping, roadway pavement rehabilitation, new curb and gutter, benches, bike racks, and pedestrian signage.

JMC2 used MicroStation Geopak (now OpenRoads) and WaterCAD for this project. It has not only made the pedestrian spaces more livable, and given the ability for social distancing during the pandemic, but has also made the area more attractive, giving the community a better space to be outdoors that feels both safer and more efficient.

Next year, you too could nominate a project for the YII Awards! Watch the finalist's presentations starting next week and be thinking of what project you could submit next year! Archway is always available to help make your submission the best it can be.

Bentley Goes Public - September 23, 2020

On September 23, 2020, Bentley Systems (BSY) rang the bell on the Nasdaq Global Select Market and began trading with an IPO of 10,750,000 shares at the initial price of $22.00.

This is a momentous occasion for Bentley and they have already seen a strong performance in their first week on the market. What started as a small family owned software company has become a globally recognized leader in civil engineering software. Filing an IPO is just the next step in Bentley's bright future in this industry.
