2021 Virtual Bentley Bash - One Month Away!

The 2021 Virtual Bentley Bash registration is open!

Join us this year for a jam-packed event with new topics and presenters. This two day event on Friday, January 15th and Saturday, January 16th will be kicked off each day with a plenary session full of great speakers including Bentley executives Katriona Lord-Levins on Friday and Santanu Das on Saturday.

Then you can take up to 6 different sessions on topics including MicroStation, OpenRoads Designer, OpenBuildings Designer, OpenSite Designer, RAM Structural System, CUBE, SYNCHRO and more! And you can do it all from the comfort of your home or office!

New this year, you get a license for the software that starts as soon as you register for the Bash and ends March 1st, 2021! This means you can try out any of 50 different software and take on-demand classes before and after the Bash. You will also receive access to recordings of the Bash sessions available through March 1st, 2021 so you can get extra practice with the software and demos!

Report: Planning Stages of Digital Twins

Bentley's focus on digital twins has been at the forefront of its message the past few years. One of the ways they are making it a reality for their customers is through the acquisitions of different products to help create a digital twin at different stages of the project.

One of those acquisitions in 2019, Citilabs, created a software called CUBE. There are different pieces of CUBE that allow for planning in different aspects of transportation and land-use modeling. This software is used by planners and engineers to see how new projects will effect the areas they are building in including the city's transportation, land-use and population.

There are a few different pieces included in the CUBE suite of software such as CUBE Cargo for freight modeling, CUBE Voyager for the macroscopic movement of people and vehicles, CUBE Dynasim for microscopic traffic simulation and CUBE Access for accessibility metrics. These are just a few available in the suite. Check out more on Bentley's website.

If you want a demo of the software, sign up for the Bentley Bash as there will be a session presented on CUBE on Friday morning, January 15th, 2021 at 11:00am-12:30pm PST! Register today!
